

Lasallian network strongly represented at this year's NAFSA Convention

From May 28th to June 2nd thousands of experts in international education gathered in Los Angeles for this year's NAFSA Convention. The Lasallian network was strongly represented with more than a third of IALU's membership present.

Lasallians took the opportunity of the gathering to meet as a network for the second year in a row. Amongst the ideas discussed, a desire for a special gathering of Lasallian international education experts was proposed, as well as a suggestion that internationalization experts should be present at 2018's Encuentro. This was also a unique opportunity to discuss effective implementation of the One La Salle Agreement, which is currently being sent out to university presidents.

Next year's NAFSA Convention takes place in Philadelphia and we hope that Lasallians will gather once again to strengthen our international bonds.
